

MATTHEW SPENCER

Madison Gas and Electric

Matthew Spencer is director of government relations for Madison Gas and Electric (MGE). In this role, he oversees all interactions with local, state, and federal elected officials relating to energy policy and other matters of interest to MGE. Prior to joining MGE in 2019, Matthew spent eight years in the Wisconsin state capitol working as a legislative staffer in both the Wisconsin Assembly and Senate, including serving as clerk of the Assembly energy and utilities committee and the Senate workforce development, military affairs, and senior issues committee. He also worked as communications and legislative director for the Public Service Commission of Wisconsin. Matthew graduated from the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater with bachelor of arts degrees in political science and communications.
