

RYAN WARDIN

Ranger Power

As director of external affairs, Ryan Wardin oversees strategic policy and legislative initiatives, coordinates regulatory and stakeholder engagement, and leads media and marketing efforts. Ryan has over 15 years of government relations experience where he has focused on driving meaningful advancements in energy policy and innovation. Before joining Ranger Power, Ryan served as a government relations consultant in Lansing, Michigan, where he successfully guided clients through complex legislative processes. His leadership was pivotal in shaping Michigan's energy landscape, including playing a key role in the passage of transformative renewable siting reform legislation.